

GOLD FATHER OF HOWARD'S

Kingdon, Son of George, Denies Mother Sympathizes with Sister-in-Law and Says He Does Not Know Her.

All the sympathy of George Gould's family is with Howard Gould in his bitter domestic warfare with his wife, according to a statement made by Kingdon Gould when he sailed to-day on the St. Paul, of the American line, to join his mother and father in Paris.

The young man said he knew nothing of a reported breach in the Gould family over the suit for separation of Mrs. Howard Gould.

"I never have met Mrs. Howard Gould," said the young man to-day, "nor have any of my brothers and sisters met my aunt. She has never been to our homes in Lakewood or in this city. I have seen Mrs. Gould, but I never have been introduced to her."

"Is it true," Kingdon Gould was asked, "that your mother, Mrs. George Gould, sympathizes with Mrs. Howard Gould, and that there is a family split over the matrimonial troubles of your uncle?"

"I know nothing of any split or breach or feud in the family," responded the young man. "I know that the sympathy of my family is all with my uncle, Howard."

Knows Nothing of Suit?

Young Gould was accompanied by his grandmother, Mrs. Edith Kingdon. He said that he was taking her to Bourne-mouth, England, where she would spend the summer, as she was in poor health. Then he would go on to Paris and join his mother and father. Asked if he expected to appear at the trial of his uncle's suit, he said:

"I don't know anything about the suit beyond what I have read. As I said before, I have never met my aunt. I am going abroad for a brief vacation trip to join my mother and father. I have been studying very hard at Columbia during the past year and need a rest. I will return in July. My brothers and sisters will not go abroad this summer."

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Gould sailed this week, to remain abroad all summer. Other members of the family will follow in a few days, it was said, as they are all desirous of escaping the hot weather attendant upon their kinman's matrimonial difficulties.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gould, who have been having troubles of their own, due to a misunderstanding between Frank Gould and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Kelly. They will sail, it is said, before the end of the month, and Miss Helen Gould will make her usual summer trip abroad.

Notwithstanding Kingdon Gould's statement that all the sympathy of the family was with Howard Gould, several friends of the Goulds persisted in saying to-day that his mother would take the side of the former actress. They base this theory entirely upon the fact that Mrs. George Gould felt keenly for her sister-in-law at the time she was married, when detected in Katherine Clemons' country life during the period when she was starting in several theatrical ventures that were declared to have been backed by Col. Cody.

When Kingdon Gould was asked flatly if he knew anything of the report that his mother had sided with Howard's wife, he replied:

"I don't know anything about that. I don't know anything about the family attitude, except that we are all very fond of my uncle Howard."

Her Record as Litigant.

The alleged extravagant eccentricities and eccentric extravaganzas of Mrs. Katherine Clemons Gould will be aired in minute detail when her suit for divorce is heard in the court of a quarter of a million a year.

A history of all the litigation Mrs. Gould stirred up will make a portentous document, in many of its features both startling and amusing. The discharge of servants whose whippersnapper nature did not fitted to suit the whim of the millionaire's wife, is said to be only an illustration of her peevishness.

Help Wanted To-Day!

As advertised in The Morning World's Want Directory.

Addressers	1	Gardeners	2
Agents	1	Girls	26
Art Flowers	9	Housework	49
Bakers	2	Housekeepers	2
Barbers	2	Ironers	8
Barkeepers	14	Janitors	14
Bookkeepers	11	Janitresses	2
Boys	31	Jewellers	2
Butchers	19	Kitchenmen	11
Butcheresses	19	Laundresses	12
Carpenters	6	Machinists	11
Cashiers	5	Milliners	3
Chambermaids	25	Molders	2
Chefs	3	Nurses	1
Cleaners	3	Operators	4
Collectors	4	Packers	4
Compositors	9	Photographers	9
Cooks (Male)	22	Plumbers	12
Cooks (Female)	14	Shoemakers	18
Cutters	12	Stallions	4
Deputies	12	Tailors	12
Dishwashers	11	Tenants	2
Drivers	16	Waiters	2
Drummers	1	Waitresses	17
Electricians	4	Miscellaneous	337
Employers	29
Engineers	2
Executives	1
Firemen	1
General Clerks	1
Total	1,004

Every week, month and year The World prints more "Help Wanted" Ads than any three other New York newspapers combined.

WIFE'S RIVAL HAS CAUSED SUICIDE OF M. B. BECKMAN

Friends of Dead President of New York Auto Transfer Company Assert That He Was Lured Into Schemes of Queer Character.

Back of the suicide of Marius B. Beckman, President of the New York Auto Transfer Company, of No. 946 Broadway, is a story of a mysterious swindle, by which, friends of the dead man say, he lost a considerable fortune. These friends and business associates say that it was not losses sustained by the auto company because of bad weather, but money he invested in a patent lamp and a mysterious process for the treatment of steel that involved his fortunes to the breaking point.

Beckman took a draught of prussic acid in his office at No. 110 West 110th street, June 1st, after writing a brief note to his son, who is secretary of the auto company. In this he admitted that the business was in serious straits, but did not explain anything about the large investments he had made in the patent schemes.

Had Hypnotic Influence. Some of Beckman's associates are authorities for the statement that the man who lured him into these had almost a hypnotic influence over him. The mysterious man appeared at Beckman's office in the Flatiron Building several months ago. He had with him papers purporting to be patents on an arc lamp and a secret process for the treatment of steel by which its strength was vastly increased at a nominal cost.

Beckman immediately became interested and promised to put up money to promote the two patents, if they were found to be regular. The man who represented himself to be the patent owner brought in an alleged confederate, and together they succeeded in convincing Beckman that the patent papers were regular.

The two informed him that the secret process for the treatment of steel had been tested in the laboratories of Columbia University, and that it had done everything that the patents represented.

Beckman was told that the real secret of the process lay in a white powder that was placed in a solution in a vat of plain water. When a steel pipe was plunged in the solution the mysterious powder had such a molecular influence on the metal that its tensile strength was multiplied many times.

Put Money Into Schemes. Without further investigation Beckman put up a liberal sum of money for the process.

Beckman was told that the real secret of the process lay in a white powder that was placed in a solution in a vat of plain water. When a steel pipe was plunged in the solution the mysterious powder had such a molecular influence on the metal that its tensile strength was multiplied many times.

Without further investigation Beckman put up a liberal sum of money for the process.

FUNERALS MAY BE HELD UP BY DRIVERS' STRIKE

1,600 Coachmen Threaten to Quit if Their Demands Are Denied.

Sixteen hundred coach drivers threaten to go on strike Monday and tie up the funerals of the city unless their employers concede their demands. A meeting will be held to-morrow night, fully attended and the decision as to whether or not to strike put to a vote.

The chief grievance of the Julius is that there are not enough steady men employed in the stables. A steady man is a man always on the job, who is paid $1 a day whether he goes out or not.

At present, the Julius men say, there is only one steady man to every twelve teams. The demand will be made for a steady man to every five teams.

The employers will be asked also to change their schedule in pay for the men who are not steadily employed. At present they are paid by the trip, $1.25 no matter how long the trip takes, or by the hour, $1.00 for every hour they are on the job.

Wait and fear and fight, dear, do it all in one. The sun comes out, it is not so hot. When all is said and done.

Mr. Meyer has appealed to Mrs. Keogh, mother of the dead man, to use her influence to clear the atmosphere.

THINK PRISONERS MAY HAVE SLAIN PRIEST.

Three Italians Arrested at Tannersville by New York Detectives.

Peabody to Be Tried. Frank Peabody, the Central Office detective, who sent the famous "Van this is Bar" telegram from Baltimore, is being tried to-morrow at the New York court.

Peabody is accused of making false statements to his superiors. When he was first questioned by Deputy Commissioner Hanson he denied taking part in the telegram from Baltimore to Sholes, the famous man, about the marriage of Mrs. Gould. Later, when Capt. McLaughlin was called to the stand, Peabody refused to stand by Peabody, the detective made a full confession.

It is expected that he will reveal all he knows about how McLaughlin got into the Gould case. The charges are that he will escape with a fine.

Many Driven From Homes in South Part of St. Louis.

WAS KESS THROWN INTO A FURNACE BY ANARCHISTS? METZ HITS AT REFUTING CHARGE OF GRAFT

Corporation Counsel Denies that Any of His Assistants Have Been in Proceedings in Which City's Interests Were Attacked by Them.

Further alleged revelations of the system by which the city has for years been trimmed in the acquiring of lands for public uses were made known to-day. This new information was unearthed by Comptroller Metz's staff, and it was intended to be a rebuttal to Corporation Counsel Ellison, who dared the Comptroller to make good the allegation that some of the experts hired by the city, and lawyers paid to watch the interests of the taxpayers, played both ends against the middle in many notable deals.

Corporation Counsel Ellison was quick to reply to Comptroller Metz's sweeping charges. He denied that any lawyer in his department wronged the city, and explained how big fees were piled up in condemnation proceedings.

Mr. Metz, in his original charge, said in effect that in several condemnation transactions during the last three years the name of a man who bore close relations with the office of the Corporation Counsel was involved. He said that this man had acted both for and against the city in many cases.

Ellison Looked for Trouble. The very next day Corporation Counsel Ellison looked for trouble. He would be obliged to him if he would give him the name of the man referred to in his speech. Mr. Metz responded that it would be forthcoming just as soon as he could get around to it. The long record delivered to Mr. Metz, and part of which was made public to-day, was the result.

"In that report Mr. Ellison has not only the man's name in question, but a lot of other interesting information for his office," said Mr. Metz. "I have given him sufficient data for a considerable investigation, and trust that he will make the best possible use of it."

The name of the one man has not been made public, but in the report were the names of six of the city's so-called real estate experts, who appear to have been piling up fortunes on the strength of their testimony. The six are Samuel Smith, C. A. Berrian, Herbert Jones, Thomas E. Smith, John M. Thompson and Morris Jacoby.

High Fees for Experts. In the last three years these six experts have received in fees from the city the tidy sum of $187,000.25, their work being the appraisal of property for the city under orders from the office of the Corporation Counsel. Of this amount Smith drew $50,000, Berrian $22,000, Jacoby $25,000, the other three dividing the balance. It was the facts that had much to do with the inspiration of Mr. Metz's famous speech.

Mr. Metz has made the further discovery that in the years 1901, 1905 and 1906 the city has paid out for expert services in acquiring needed real estate more than $240,000. He says that in fact these amazing figures it is high time for the city to find some other course by which real estate may be purchased from the city. According to the figures set out in the report made for the Finance Department, the city has many times acquired property at five or six times the real value.

Not at Bottom Yet. "My first purpose," said Mr. Metz, "is to find out how it comes that these six so-called real estate experts have been able to get away with the monopoly of the expert business. They got fabulous fees and now I mean to find out, if I can, what they have done for the city. The fact is, I am convinced that merely the surface has been scratched. There is a great deal more to be known about these men and their transactions. But already it is more than apparent that the city has been forced to pay out much more money for pieces of property taken by condemnation proceedings."

It is likely probable now that the Riverside Drive Commission, which had charge of the Washington Heights extension, and the Board of Estimate of the row on the part of Mr. Metz, will be discharged on the strength of the report that is to be made to the Board of Estimate by the special committee. This committee is composed of Comptroller Metz, Borough President Aldern and President McGowan, of the Board of Aldermen.

Other members of the special committee say that the Commission is in no way to blame for the figures in the preliminary report. They credit the high prices for the condemned property entirely to the city's real estate experts on whose testimony the Commission must rely. As a matter of fact, the condemnation commissioners in nearly all instances, as in this case, upon the reports of the city's experts.

There is a question as to whether the Board of Estimate has the power to discharge the Commission, and this may have to be settled by the courts.

Ellison's Explanation. Corporation Counsel Ellison issued his statement this afternoon in which he dug back at Mr. Metz. He said: "So far as is concerned the published statement regarding an Assistant Corporation Counsel making $10,000 a year and at the same time, taking cases against the city, Mr. Metz has informed me that he has no objection to my doing so."

For a moment. "The man whom I think Mr. Metz has in his mind was Mr. Edward H. Hawke, Jr., who some time ago was employed as special counsel on behalf of the city."

Mr. Metz, in his original charge, said in effect that in several condemnation transactions during the last three years the name of a man who bore close relations with the office of the Corporation Counsel was involved. He said that this man had acted both for and against the city in many cases.

Ellison Looked for Trouble. The very next day Corporation Counsel Ellison looked for trouble. He would be obliged to him if he would give him the name of the man referred to in his speech. Mr. Metz responded that it would be forthcoming just as soon as he could get around to it.

The long record delivered to Mr. Metz, and part of which was made public to-day, was the result.

"In that report Mr. Ellison has not only the man's name in question, but a lot of other interesting information for his office," said Mr. Metz. "I have given him sufficient data for a considerable investigation, and trust that he will make the best possible use of it."

The name of the one man has not been made public, but in the report were the names of six of the city's so-called real estate experts, who appear to have been piling up fortunes on the strength of their testimony. The six are Samuel Smith, C. A. Berrian, Herbert Jones, Thomas E. Smith, John M. Thompson and Morris Jacoby.

High Fees for Experts. In the last three years these six experts have received in fees from the city the tidy sum of $187,000.25, their work being the appraisal of property for the city under orders from the office of the Corporation Counsel. Of this amount Smith drew $50,000, Berrian $22,000, Jacoby $25,000, the other three dividing the balance. It was the facts that had much to do with the inspiration of Mr. Metz's famous speech.

Mr. Metz has made the further discovery that in the years 1901, 1905 and 1906 the city has paid out for expert services in acquiring needed real estate more than $240,000. He says that in fact these amazing figures it is high time for the city to find some other course by which real estate may be purchased from the city. According to the figures set out in the report made for the Finance Department, the city has many times acquired property at five or six times the real value.

Not at Bottom Yet. "My first purpose," said Mr. Metz, "is to find out how it comes that these six so-called real estate experts have been able to get away with the monopoly of the expert business. They got fabulous fees and now I mean to find out, if I can, what they have done for the city. The fact is, I am convinced that merely the surface has been scratched. There is a great deal more to be known about these men and their transactions. But already it is more than apparent that the city has been forced to pay out much more money for pieces of property taken by condemnation proceedings."

It is likely probable now that the Riverside Drive Commission, which had charge of the Washington Heights extension, and the Board of Estimate of the row on the part of Mr. Metz, will be discharged on the strength of the report that is to be made to the Board of Estimate by the special committee. This committee is composed of Comptroller Metz, Borough President Aldern and President McGowan, of the Board of Aldermen.

Other members of the special committee say that the Commission is in no way to blame for the figures in the preliminary report. They credit the high prices for the condemned property entirely to the city's real estate experts on whose testimony the Commission must rely. As a matter of fact, the condemnation commissioners in nearly all instances, as in this case, upon the reports of the city's experts.

There is a question as to whether the Board of Estimate has the power to discharge the Commission, and this may have to be settled by the courts.

Ellison's Explanation. Corporation Counsel Ellison issued his statement this afternoon in which he dug back at Mr. Metz. He said: "So far as is concerned the published statement regarding an Assistant Corporation Counsel making $10,000 a year and at the same time, taking cases against the city, Mr. Metz has informed me that he has no objection to my doing so."

For a moment. "The man whom I think Mr. Metz has in his mind was Mr. Edward H. Hawke, Jr., who some time ago was employed as special counsel on behalf of the city."

Mr. Metz, in his original charge, said in effect that in several condemnation transactions during the last three years the name of a man who bore close relations with the office of the Corporation Counsel was involved. He said that this man had acted both for and against the city in many cases.

Ellison Looked for Trouble. The very next day Corporation Counsel Ellison looked for trouble. He would be obliged to him if he would give him the name of the man referred to in his speech. Mr. Metz responded that it would be forthcoming just as soon as he could get around to it.

The long record delivered to Mr. Metz, and part of which was made public to-day, was the result.

"In that report Mr. Ellison has not only the man's name in question, but a lot of other interesting information for his office," said Mr. Metz. "I have given him sufficient data for a considerable investigation, and trust that he will make the best possible use of it."

The name of the one man has not been made public, but in the report were the names of six of the city's so-called real estate experts, who appear to have been piling up fortunes on the strength of their testimony. The six are Samuel Smith, C. A. Berrian, Herbert Jones, Thomas E. Smith, John M. Thompson and Morris Jacoby.

High Fees for Experts. In the last three years these six experts have received in fees from the city the tidy sum of $187,000.25, their work being the appraisal of property for the city under orders from the office of the Corporation Counsel. Of this amount Smith drew $50,000, Berrian $22,000, Jacoby $25,000, the other three dividing the balance. It was the facts that had much to do with the inspiration of Mr. Metz's famous speech.

Mr. Metz has made the further discovery that in the years 1901, 1905 and 1906 the city has paid out for expert services in acquiring needed real estate more than $240,000. He says that in fact these amazing figures it is high time for the city to find some other course by which real estate may be purchased from the city. According to the figures set out in the report made for the Finance Department, the city has many times acquired property at five or six times the real value.

Not at Bottom Yet. "My first purpose," said Mr. Metz, "is to find out how it comes that these six so-called real estate experts have been able to get away with the monopoly of the expert business. They got fabulous fees and now I mean to find out, if I can, what they have done for the city. The fact is, I am convinced that merely the surface has been scratched. There is a great deal more to be known about these men and their transactions. But already it is more than apparent that the city has been forced to pay out much more money for pieces of property taken by condemnation proceedings."

It is likely probable now that the Riverside Drive Commission, which had charge of the Washington Heights extension, and the Board of Estimate of the row on the part of Mr. Metz, will be discharged on the strength of the report that is to be made to the Board of Estimate by the special committee. This committee is composed of Comptroller Metz, Borough President Aldern and President McGowan, of the Board of Aldermen.

Other members of the special committee say that the Commission is in no way to blame for the figures in the preliminary report. They credit the high prices for the condemned property entirely to the city's real estate experts on whose testimony the Commission must rely. As a matter of fact, the condemnation commissioners in nearly all instances, as in this case, upon the reports of the city's experts.

There is a question as to whether the Board of Estimate has the power to discharge the Commission, and this may have to be settled by the courts.

Ellison's Explanation. Corporation Counsel Ellison issued his statement this afternoon in which he dug back at Mr. Metz. He said: "So far as is concerned the published statement regarding an Assistant Corporation Counsel making $10,000 a year and at the same time, taking cases against the city, Mr. Metz has informed me that he has no objection to my doing so."

For a moment. "The man whom I think Mr. Metz has in his mind was Mr. Edward H. Hawke, Jr., who some time ago was employed as special counsel on behalf of the city."

Mr. Metz, in his original charge, said in effect that in several condemnation transactions during the last three years the name of a man who bore close relations with the office of the Corporation Counsel was involved. He said that this man had acted both for and against the city in many cases.

Ellison Looked for Trouble. The very next day Corporation Counsel Ellison looked for trouble. He would be obliged to him if he would give him the name of the man referred to in his speech. Mr. Metz responded that it would be forthcoming just as soon as he could get around to it.

The long record delivered to Mr. Metz, and part of which was made public to-day, was the result.

"In that report Mr. Ellison has not only the man's name in question, but a lot of other interesting information for his office," said Mr. Metz. "I have given him sufficient data for a considerable investigation, and trust that he will make the best possible use of it."

The name of the one man has not been made public, but in the report were the names of six of the city's so-called real estate experts, who appear to have been piling up fortunes on the strength of their testimony. The six are Samuel Smith, C. A. Berrian, Herbert Jones, Thomas E. Smith, John M. Thompson and Morris Jacoby.

High Fees for Experts. In the last three years these six experts have received in fees from the city the tidy sum of $187,000.25, their work being the appraisal of property for the city under orders from the office of the Corporation Counsel. Of this amount Smith drew $50,000, Berrian $22,000, Jacoby $25,000, the other three dividing the balance. It was the facts that had much to do with the inspiration of Mr. Metz's famous speech.

Mr. Metz has made the further discovery that in the years 1901, 1905 and 1906 the city has paid out for expert services in acquiring needed real estate more than $240,000. He says that in fact these amazing figures it is high time for the city to find some other course by which real estate may be purchased from the city. According to the figures set out in the report made for the Finance Department, the city has many times acquired property at five or six times the real value.

Not at Bottom Yet. "My first purpose," said Mr. Metz, "is to find out how it comes that these six so-called real estate experts have been able to get away with the monopoly of the expert business. They got fabulous fees and now I mean to find out, if I can, what they have done for the city. The fact is, I am convinced that merely the surface has been scratched. There is a great deal more to be known about these men and their transactions. But already it is more than apparent that the city has been forced to pay out much more money for pieces of property taken by condemnation proceedings."

It is likely probable now that the Riverside Drive Commission, which had charge of the Washington Heights extension, and the Board of Estimate of the row on the part of Mr. Metz, will be discharged on the strength of the report that is to be made to the Board of Estimate by the special committee. This committee is composed of Comptroller Metz, Borough President Aldern and President McGowan, of the Board of Aldermen.

Other members of the special committee say that the Commission is in no way to blame for the figures in the preliminary report. They credit the high prices for the condemned property entirely to the city's real estate experts on whose testimony the Commission must rely. As a matter of fact, the condemnation commissioners in nearly all instances, as in this case, upon the reports of the city's experts.

There is a question as to whether the Board of Estimate has the power to discharge the Commission, and this may have to be settled by the courts.

Ellison's Explanation. Corporation Counsel Ellison issued his statement this afternoon in which he dug back at Mr. Metz. He said: "So far as is concerned the published statement regarding an Assistant Corporation Counsel making $10,000 a year and at the same time, taking cases against the city, Mr. Metz has informed me that he has no objection to my doing so."

For a moment. "The man whom I think Mr. Metz has in his mind was Mr. Edward H. Hawke, Jr., who some time ago was employed as special counsel on behalf of the city."

Mr. Metz, in his original charge, said in effect that in several condemnation transactions during the last three years the name of a man who bore close relations with the office of the Corporation Counsel was involved. He said that this man had acted both for and against the city in many cases.

Ellison Looked for Trouble. The very next day Corporation Counsel Ellison looked for trouble. He would be obliged to him if he would give him the name of the man referred to in his speech. Mr. Metz responded that it would be forthcoming just as soon as he could get around to it.

The long record delivered to Mr. Metz, and part of which was made public to-day, was the result.

"In that report Mr. Ellison has not only the man's name in question, but a lot of other interesting information for his office," said Mr. Metz. "I have given him sufficient data for a considerable investigation, and trust that he will make the best possible use of it."

The name of the one man has not been made public, but in the report were the names of six of the city's so-called real estate experts, who appear to have been piling up fortunes on the strength of their testimony. The six are Samuel Smith, C. A. Berrian, Herbert Jones, Thomas E. Smith, John M. Thompson and Morris Jacoby.

High Fees for Experts. In the last three years these six experts have received in fees from the city the tidy sum of $187,000.25, their work being the appraisal of property for the city under orders from the office of the Corporation Counsel. Of this amount Smith drew $50,000, Berrian $22,000, Jacoby $25,000, the other three dividing the balance. It was the facts that had much to do with the inspiration of Mr. Metz's famous speech.

Mr. Metz has made the further discovery that in the years 1901, 1905 and 1906 the city has paid out for expert services in acquiring needed real estate more than $240,000. He says that in fact these amazing figures it is high time for the city to find some other course by which real estate may be purchased from the city. According to the figures set out in the report made for the Finance Department, the city has many times acquired property at five or six times the real value.

Not at Bottom Yet. "My first purpose," said Mr. Metz, "is to find out how it comes that these six so-called real estate experts have been able to get away with the monopoly of the expert business. They got fabulous fees and now I mean to find out, if I can, what they have done for the city. The fact is, I am convinced that merely the surface has been scratched. There is a great deal more to be known about these men and their transactions. But already it is more than apparent that the city has been forced to pay out much more money for pieces of property taken by condemnation proceedings."

It is likely probable now that the Riverside Drive Commission, which had charge of the Washington Heights extension, and the Board of Estimate of the row on the part of Mr. Metz, will be discharged on the strength of the report that is to be made to the Board of Estimate by the special committee. This committee is composed of Comptroller Metz, Borough President Aldern and President McGowan, of the Board of Aldermen.

Other members of the special committee say that the Commission is in no way to blame for the figures in the preliminary report. They credit the high prices for the condemned property entirely to the city's real estate experts on whose testimony the Commission must rely. As a matter of fact, the condemnation commissioners in nearly all instances, as in this case, upon the reports of the city's experts.

There is a question as to whether the Board of Estimate has the power to discharge the Commission, and this may have to be settled by the courts.

Ellison's Explanation. Corporation Counsel Ellison issued his statement this afternoon in which he dug back at Mr. Metz. He said: "So far as is concerned the published statement regarding an Assistant Corporation Counsel making $10,000 a year and at the same time, taking cases against the city, Mr. Metz has informed me that he has no objection to my doing so."

For a moment. "The man whom I think Mr. Metz has in his mind was Mr. Edward H. Hawke, Jr., who some time ago was employed as special counsel on behalf of the city."

Mr. Metz, in his original charge, said in effect that in several condemnation transactions during the last three years the name of a man who bore close relations with the office of the Corporation Counsel was involved. He said that this man had acted both for and against the city in many cases.

Ellison Looked for Trouble. The very next day Corporation Counsel Ellison looked for trouble. He would be obliged to him if he would give him the name of the man referred to in his speech. Mr. Metz responded that it would be forthcoming just as soon as he could get around to it.

The long record delivered to Mr. Metz, and part of which was made public to-day, was the result.

"In that report Mr. Ellison has not only the man's name in question, but a lot of other interesting information for his office," said Mr. Metz. "I have given him sufficient data for a considerable investigation, and trust that he will make the best possible use of it."

The name of the one man has not been made public, but in the report were the names of six of the city's so-called real estate experts, who appear to have been piling up fortunes on the strength of their testimony. The six are Samuel Smith, C. A. Berrian, Herbert Jones, Thomas E. Smith, John M. Thompson and Morris Jacoby.

High Fees for Experts. In the last three years these six experts have received in fees from the city the tidy sum of $187,000.25, their work being the appraisal of property for the city under orders from the office of the Corporation Counsel. Of this amount Smith drew $50,000, Berrian $22,000, Jacoby $25,000, the other three dividing the balance. It was the facts that had much to do with the inspiration of Mr. Metz's famous speech.

Mr. Metz has made the further discovery that in the years 1901, 1905 and 1906 the city has paid out for expert services in acquiring needed real estate more than $240,000. He says that in fact these amazing figures it is high time for the city to find some other course by which real estate may be purchased from the city. According to the figures set out in the report made for the Finance Department, the city has many times acquired property at five or six times the real value.

Not at Bottom Yet. "My first purpose," said Mr. Metz, "is to find out how it comes that these six so-called real estate experts have been able to get away with the monopoly of the expert business. They got fabulous fees and now I mean to find out, if I can, what they have done for the city. The fact is, I am convinced that merely the surface has been scratched. There is a great deal more to be